The blue roller coaster is "The Cyclone" and the red one is "The Human".

"Hurry up!" exclaimed Lucy. "The roller coaster is about to start. Hurry up!"

Nervously, I stumbled up the stairs to the roller coaster. I could hear screams and shouts, cries and cheers.

I was telling Lucy I'm sick, but she couldn't hear. Looking up, I could see twirls and turns, upside downs and right way ups. "No, no, no," I murmured. "We're there!"

Lucy pulled me up the stairs and pushed me down the stairs. Finally, she managed to drag me to the fierce roller coaster. She made me sit on the humongous chair and helped me put on the safety bar and the seat belt, but I felt she's strangling me!

"The Human is about to start, please keep your hands and feet inside the vehicle. Keep safe!"

came out from the speaker on the ceiling. I am really nervous now!

Slowly, The Cyclone moved outside. I saw the people opposite of me riding The Cyclone, I could see some people were really excited and some were freaking out. It went up to the middle, same as The Cyclone. "Good," I thought, "It's moving slow." But suddenly, it shot up non-stop and dived down like lightning. Within that time, I couldn't scream, it's like my throat was stuck!

After that risky adventure, it was the hottest time of the day. I rushed to the toilet and opened the tap. "Splash!" the water plunged on my face. A sense of relief! I felt much better. I wasn't that scared anymore, instead I felt hungry. So I scurried toward Lucy and told her I'm hungry.

We're finding a place to eat but she came up with an idea. "Let's go and watch a movie after lunch." recommended Lucy.

"Sure!" I agreed excitedly. "I love movies." So I gobbled my launch up as fast as a hungry cheetah devouring its prey.

I sprinted towards the cinema, it was playing "Sand Trails of Egypt". Pretty scary I thought. I waited for the next movie. But I found out there was an abundant choice of movies. I chose my favorite movie "Snow Buddies".

At the end, we're finished. Unfortunately, we had to go home. After all, I love this trip! I would never forget about it!
